Was she unavailable for comment for this article? Did she give any reasons for the things she was saying? What are the specifics?

Before you all wax rhapsodic about what wonderful iconoclastic individuals these are, do a little research.

Ms. Sassower-the-Younger is the only person in the history of these United States to actually serve the maximum six months for disrupting Congress. Read the NY Times article concerning that incident and you will get a glimpse of someone who is in dire need of professional help. Very sad.

The elder Ms. Sassower's license to practice law in the State of New York has been suspended for some time now. It's one thing to be active members of the community, speaking out and offering cogent arguments concerning local issues. It's quite another to grind an ax for years on end, ranting about imagined slights and inventing "awards" to bestow on yourself in an effort to lend credibility to crackpot arguments, which allege that virtually no judge in the State of New York has been legally seated because of an oath which may or may not have been administered to them.

Or perhaps the City of White Plains is taking a hard look at the bed and breakfast the Sassowers run here, "Soundview Manor"? Is it licensed? Those glowing reviews on internet travel sites (which all sound suspiciously alike- several containing the same misspellings) how real are they?
