Dear Professor Turley,

Hope you are well.

Attached is my letter to you of today's date -- already faxed to you with my published reponse to "The Scourge of Her Conviction", in case you never saw it.

I have also attached Professor Horwitz' draft amicus curiae brief on the fourth appellate issue in the "disruption of Congress" case.

Hard copies will be mailed.

Regards and great thanks.

Elena

Dear Professor,

Arriving in the mail, either today or tomorrow, will be a corrected copy of my August 19th letter to you -- faxed & e-mailed to you on that date. The only substantive change is to the penultimate paragraph on page 3. Referring to coverage in the Village Voice, Legal Times, New York Law Journal, The Washington Post, Roll Call, The Philadelphia Inquirer, and The New York Times, the last sentence of that paragraph now states:

> "To varying degrees, ALL conceal the politically-explosive nature of the case and its far-reqching legal and constitutional issues, substituting instead a mix of one-sided or materially incomplete, misleading, even false presentations, interwoven with baseless and maligning characterizations of me."

Again, thank you and regards.

Elena
