

309                    Cooperation between Bureaus

To accomplish the Office's mission and objectives, all staff members need to cooperate with each other. Therefore, when a staff member obtains information which may be of value to a unit, bureau, or division other than his own, he or she will report such information to his or her supervisor, who will transmit the information to the appropriate division of the office.

Please note that, under current laws applicable to prosecutors' offices, professional information known by one member of the Office is imputed to the entire Office.