Hi Ms. Sassower,

Thank you for your multiple messages. I will review these materials you have sent along and call you back. You are welcome to consider me your contact at The Post-Standard to avoid having all of us respond individually to your request. I will let you know whether we are interested in pursuing the story you are suggesting. FYI, I am not certain when I'll be able to get back to you. I'm going to be busy with an assignment for most of the day tomorrow.

If you are interested in reaching out to our editorial board or writing an opinion piece, you can contact letters@syracuse.com.

-Julie

This follows up the voice mail message I left for you at about 10:40 am yesterday (315-412-1992), to which I have received no return call. I tried to reach you about an hour and a half ago, but your voice mail is full and was "unable to accept new messages".

I have a great deal of information and EVIDENCE to furnish you, germane to your reporting, as Mark Weiner can attest from my two phone lengthy conversations with him on March 16th and April 9th and his examination of CJA's website, www.judgewatch.org, including, as guided by me. A propos of your April 5th article on Cynthia Nixon's Syracuse visit, below is my March 29th e-mail to the members of the Legislative Correspondents' Association entitled "CORRUPTION ALERT: Does Albany 'Outsider' Cynthia Nixon think the 'three/four men in a room' budget deal-making, happening now & behind-closed-doors, is constitutional? How about The New York Times?" – simultaneously sent to Ms. Nixon's campaign treasurer, Zephyr Teachout. As reflected by the below transmittals to Mr. Weiner, I forwarded it to him on March 29th and then again on April 9th. The attachments are above.

I received no response from Professor Teachout – nor even confirmation that she furnished my correspondence to Ms. Nixon, as I had requested. Why is that? And what is her response to the lawsuit EVIDENCE that the New York State
